

Every year, about 5000 pregnant women are hospitalized and treated in Early Pregnancy Clinic of Etlik Zubeyde Hanim Women's Health Care, Training and Research Hospital, University of Health Sciences. Annually 450-500 ectopic pregnancies are admitted to our clinic; medical treatment (non-surgical drug therapy) is applied to 70% of these cases, which are suitable for drug treatment, and 30% of who have contraindications are treated by laparoscopic surgery. In rare cases, open surgery (laparotomy) is also performed for ectopic pregnancies. Women with pregnancy related nausea and vomiting which is named as hyperemesis gravidarum and threatened miscarriage are hospitalized and successfully treated in our clinic.

Down Syndrome screening by combined test in the first trimester and triple/quadruple test in 16-18 gestational weeks are applied to our patients and high risk group is determined.

Termination of pregnancies with severe fetal genetic or structural abnormalities which are diagnosed by ultrasonographic assessment and genetic examination (amniocentesis, chorionic villus sampling) is also performed in our clinic.
